Stories of presence. Those searched in ourselves and in things, found in a whole or in details. The most important are then selected. The moments that become eternal, a peaceful existence of the banal, which has equal rights, My or Your self. Interrupting the flow of time in order to capture the essential reality, or jotted down fast as if in a notebook, as the time between seeing and saving is short. Humanized because of the intimate relationship with things. Always on the side of existence and against nothingness.
